COMMENCEMENT SKETCHES

PREFACE

The annual commencement of Washington and Lee, for the session of 1909-1910, has passed into history.

The large class of graduates, the many alumni present, especially the honored survivors of the Liberty Hall volunteers, and the general character of the exercises, marked it as of more than usual interest.

The addresses were notable as efforts of high order.

The downpour of rain unfortunately resulted in preventing the boat race on North River between the Harry Lee and Albert Sidney boat crews, so full of pleasant anticipations to many. At the appointed hour the rains had made a freshet of the course and the waters piled up high over the abutting low grounds.

Due acknowledgment is made to the Rockbridge County News for the following account of the commencement exercises:

GRADUATING EXERCISES

The playing of Auld Lang Syne at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in Lee Memorial chapel, wound up the graduating exercises of the year, when the largest graduating class in the history of the institution received degrees. A total of 119 degrees were conferred. The list includes three degrees of M. A.; 45 of A. B.; 27 of B. S.; 2 of C. E.; one graduate in commerce, and forty-three in the school of law, representing, according to the statement of Dean Burks on the platform, the largest class of law graduates in the history of the institution.

The exercises opened with the announcement of scholarships and the presentation of medals. The list is:

An admirable address as the valedictorian of his class was delivered by Charles Edward Burks, A. B., of Ackerman, Miss., whose humorous thrusts aroused much mirth. He was followed by Ex-

Governor Swanson, in a strong address to the graduates. The delivery of diplomas was then made by President Denny, who followed in some mention of the work of the board of trustees. He noted with regret the resignation of Judge W. P. Houston as a member of the board of trustees, and welcomed as the member of the board chosen to succeed him, Mr. Paul M. Penick, "an able, efficient and beloved citizen of Lexington." He spoke with satisfaction of the increased revenues of the university. He announced that the board of trustees had divided the chair of modern languages into a chair of Romance languages and of Germanic languages. Of the latter Professor Farrar remains the head, and of the former, Dr. Delaware B. Easter, of Randolph-Macon, has been made professor. Appropriations have been made to build a commons, at which 300 students will dine. President Denny expressed his hearty sympathy with the incorporation of the alumni to work for the endowment of the institution and his appreciation of the good work of President Frank A. Nelson of that body, in endeavoring to arouse their interest in their alma mater. He commended the liberality of Governor William A. MacCorkle, who was seated on the platform, in contributing to pay the expenses of students at the institution.

He concluded with the announcement of the honorary degrees. The degree of Doctor of Divinity, (D. D.) upon Rev. William Mead Clark, editor of The Southern Churchman, Richmond, Va.; upon Rev. H. T. Graham, president of Hampden-Sidney college; and upon two alumni, Rev. E. R. Leyburn, of Durham, N. C., and Rev. Henry B. Lewis, pastor of a large Methodist church in Lancaster, O. The degree of Doctor of Laws, (LL. D.) was then presented in person by the president "To that eminent son of Washington and Lee, former Governor and now Senator, George E. Chamberlain, of Oregon," and "To the gifted son of Pennsylvania, who charmed and delighted the assembly yesterday, Hon. W. U. Hensel."

ORATOR'S MEDAL AWARDED

The annual contest in oratory between picked men of the Graham-Lee and Washington Literary societies took place in the chapel Monday evening. The handsome medal was won by J. R. Coates of Bolivar, Tenn. His subject was, "The Man in the Ranks."

Those contesting with him were: From the Graham-Lee society, F. C. Williams, of Virginia, whose subject was, "The Modern Pioneer;" from the Washington society, T. R. Cather, of Virginia, whose subject was, "The Industrial Progress of the South," and W. L. Cazort, of Arkansas, who spoke of the "Dawn of Peace."

The judges of the debate were Judge J. N. Lyle, of Waco, Tex., Judge John A. Lacy, of Washington, D. C., and Edward W. Wilson, Esq., of Philadelphia. The award was announced by Judge Lyle, a lieutenant in the Liberty Hall volunteers, who in announcing the award recalled some pleasant reminiscences of fifty years ago, and particularly noted that while then the subjects of college oratory were classical, now they relate to practical problems.

Professor W. S. Currell introduced the exercises on behalf of the faculty. E. L. Potter, of Virginia, was president, and Rayford Alley, of Oklahoma, was chief marshal.

LIBERTY HALL TABLET UNVEILED

The exercises of Tuesday morning, devoted to the address before the literary societies and the unveiling of a tablet to the Liberty Hall volunteers, closed with a thrilling spectacle, when fifteen of the survivors of that command of seventy-one soldier boys, the Liberty Hall volunteers, who in the flush of hope and strength, marched from Lexington, June 8, 1862, to the scene of conflict, once more answered to their names. They were called by the original orderly sergeant of the company, William A. Anderson. With the completion of the call the band sounded once again Dixie, and the assembly, standing, cheered. The exercises of the day were ended with a benediction by the Rev. Dr. Everard Meade, of Accotink, Va., one of the original members of the command.

This ended an occasion that will be cherished in the memory of many of those who were present.

President Denny in opening the exercises said, in explanation of the combination of the morning's program, that it was the desire to hold such celebrations as that of the day in as large a spirit and as national a sense as possible. He then introduced Hon. W. U. Hensel, of Lancaster, Pa., as the orator to deliver the address before the Literary Societies. Speaking of the liberal spirit shown by the orator toward the South, he coupled his name with that of Charles Francis Adams, whose tribute to Lee upon the same platform in 1908 was fresh in the minds of all.

The address of Mr. Hensel, who fills an important place in his state, was a scholarly effort. He presented some elementary truths, as he styled them, of the aim and purpose of liberal culture, which was received by the audience with many manifestations of appreciation. The opening paragraphs in which he acknowledged his kinship with this people, and paid tributes of surpassing beauty to its heroes, seemed to fitly chime in with the celebration in honor of the soldier boys which followed. He said in part:

"Of all historic spots, marked by the handiwork of God and adorned by the handicraft of man, it would be hard to find another where and of which it might be more fitly said: 'If ye seek his monument, look about you.'

"Hailing, as I do, from a great county, in a great commonwealth, in which the two dominant elements of citizenship were the same as those that peopled Virginia's valley and brought hither the iron will of the Scotch-Irish and the patient industry of the peasant German, I am not unmindful of the significance of the picturesque aspects of these towering mountain ranges, sun-kissed valleys and rolling rivers, which carry their messages from the mountains to the sea. But grander than bulwarks of physical beauty, sweeter than the bloom of peaceful fields, and swifter than the flow of sparkling waters, are the immortal messages of life and character which have come to us from the long speechless lips and silent tongues of those whose tombs and memories you cherish as a heritage beyond all calculable value.

"In the shadow of these great shrines beneath which sleep the representatives of three generations of Southern valor and virtue, Northern manhood and patriotism may well stand with uncovered heads and unshod foot.

"In yon cemetery, above his narrow grave on the green hillside, who can look upon the bronze figure of the Virginia Puritan soldier without being filled with new wonder that an unpretentious professor of mathematics went out from this quiet village and in scarcely more than two years made a fame that has so filled two hemispheres that wherever the ideals of the English race are cherished he is ranked with those soldier saints who, sealing their devotion with their lives, have won

'Death's royal purple in the foeman's line—'

"Who, standing in his presence, could forget the stately dignity of that heroic soul whom no defeat could daunt and who, nursing no revenge, when he bade farewell to all the pomp and circumstance of war, declined the substantial honors and generous offers extended to him at home and from across the sea, waived the invitations which welcomed him to fortune, ease and comfort, and linking his name with the other of Virginia's most illustrious sons set himself here to demonstrate, by the highest devotion to a cause as sacred as ever called him to battle, his unselfish devotion to his country, his commonwealth and his people?

"And who of any race through which the blood of heroes ever flowed could stand unmoved beside that memorial to the valor of those who died as well as of them who survived of that immortal battalion of beardless boys who, answering the call of the Confederacy to its children, faced death and won undying glory on the bloody field of New Market?"

At the conclusion of Mr. Hensel's address, President Denny, adopting the words of the Mother of the Grachi, and turning toward the small remnant of elderly men seated in front of the platform, said in behalf of their alma mater: "These are my jewels." By invitation they arose, and then the audience coming to their feet expressed their honor for them in hearty cheers, while the band sounded the inspiring air of Dixie. The exercises were, at this stage, transferred to the survivors of the Liberty Hall volunteers, and the yet apparently vigorous form of the company's last captain, Rev. Dr. G. B. Strickler, advanced to the front of the platform and introduced as the orator of the occasion, Hon. William A. Anderson.

Mr. Anderson was evidently filled with emotion when he arose to recall the deeds in war of his college comrades, in whose company as orderly sergeant he marched to First Manassas in 1861, to witness the death of seven of his company in battle, and to be there fearfully wounded himself and retired from duty. His address opened with a masterly review of the causes which led up to the entrance of the Old Dominion into the conflict, and then took up the touching story of the organization and deeds of the Liberty Hall volunteers. The address made a deep impression and was greeted most heartily by the audience.

It will in due time be published in full by the University.

The unveiling of the tablet, placed in front of the platform, followed. The cords were drawn by granddaughters of the first and last captains of the company, little Misses Lucy Gordan White and Frances Moore Denny, the former a daughter of Dr. Reid White and a granddaughter of Captain J. J. White, and the latter a daughter of President Denny and a granddaughter of Captain G. B. Strickler. Captain Strickler then arose and asked to give one more command to the company, to which he had issued so many. It was

The tablet, which was that evening transferred to its permanent position in the chapel vestibule, is a handsome work of art, in bronze, fifty-two inches square. Upon it in raised letters is a record of the company, showing the names of the original roll and the casualties and referring the readers to the records in the county clerk's office for names of subsequent additions to the company, not alumni.

BACCALAUREATE SUNDAY

The baccalaureate sermon in the morning, and the address to the Young Men's Christian Association in the evening, were both delivered by Bishop Kilgo, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. The eminent success of this divine as president of Trinity College, North Carolina, and his recent elevation to the bishopric in his church, by a most complimentary expression of the general conference, had aroused no little interest in his appearance here. A large congregation greeted him, in spite of unfavorable weather, when he arose to deliver the baccalaureate sermon Sunday morning. Their expectations were more than justified. Rarely have similar occasions been marked at Washington and Lee by sermons with lessons so great and effective, presented with much eloquence, as were the words that Bishop Kilgo, often in burning sentences, drove home to the mind and heart of his hearers.

Bishop Kilgo was introduced in the morning by President Denny, and in the evening by President Thomas McP. Glasgow, of the Young Men's Christian Association. Rev. W. S. Hammond and Rev. G. B. Strickler, D. D., assisted in the opening services. The music was furnished by a student choir, the congregation joining in the singing of the hymns.

THE ALUMNI AT COMMENCEMENT

The commencement was enlivened by the presence of an unusually large number of alumni, in addition to survivors of the Liberty Hall Volunteers.

A meeting of the association of alumni was held Tuesday afternoon in Newcomb Hall, over which Frank A. Nelson, of Chattanooga, the president, presided. Much interest was aroused in a resolution offered by Dr. W. Taylor Thom, of Washington, to form an incorporation of the alumni, under the name of the Washington and Lee Alumni, Incorporated, to work to endow the institution and bring it to place designed by General Robert E. Lee. The proposition is the outcome of thought by the Washington alumni.

Senator George E. Chamberlain, of Oregon, Professor W. R. Vance, of Washington, Ex-Governor MacCorkle, of West Virginia and Bennett N. Bell, of Rockbridge, advocated the plan. The speech of Governor MacCorkle was particularly earnest and enthusiastic in advocacy of the alumni coming to the aid of their alma mater. The proposition passed unanimously. Dr. Thom's resolution provides for the preparation of a charter, by Messrs. G. D. Letcher, W. S. Hopkins and Frank Moore, of the Lexington bar, which shall name in it George E. Chamberlain, R. L. Owen, W. Taylor Thom, William A. Glasgow, William A. MacCorkle, H. T. Wickman, Frank A. Nelson, as trustees. The organization is to be incorporated in Virginia, with branch offices in Washington. Senator Chamberlain and Ex-Governor MacCorkle subscribed in the meeting $100 each, to start the organization.

The association then re-elected Frank A. Nelson, Esq., president, in recognition of his successful work in reviving the interest of the alumni in their alma mater. Judge H. W. Holt, of Staunton, and Bixy Willis, Esq., of Kansas City, were also re-elected vice-presidents, and William M. McElwee, of Lexington, was re-elected treasurer, and Professor L. W. Smith, of Lexington, secretary.

That evening a large audience greeted Professor W. R. Vance, of Yale University in the chapel, and listened with much interest to a striking address by him as the orator for the alumni.

From the address the alumni gathered in Reid Hall and partook of an elegant dinner, followed by a number of good speeches. Judge John A. Lacy, of Washington, was presented by President Nelson, as toastmaster. A toast was drunk in silence to the memory of General Robert E. Lee. Addresses by the visitors were from Captain W. T. Meade, of Louisa, one of the Liberty Hall volunteers, Senator Chamberlain, Ex-Governor MacCorkle, Ex-Governor Swanson, and William A. Glasgow, of Philadelphia. Mr. J. S. Munce spoke for the board of trustees; Professor A. L. Nelson for the old faculty; Professor W. S. Currell for the present faculty, and Colonel H. C. Ford for the Virginia Military Institute.

NOTES HERE AND THERE

The remarkable growth of Washington and Lee in all the solid elements of progress in the last decade has been exceedingly gratifying to the alumni and to the friends of the institution scattered throughout the nation. The record of this growth has been widely chronicled in the press of the country. If it is desired that some of the more important evidences of this growth shall be here stated, the following are given:

The invested endowment of the institution has increased fifty per cent. The institution has long been fortunate in the fact of its being one of the best endowed colleges in the South.

The income of the institution has increased over one hundred per cent. It is believed that this increase will continue in a normal and satisfactory way.

The plant has substantially doubled and the new buildings are in architectural harmony with the fine old colonial structures around which cluster so many memories of the past.

New chairs have been organized. The trustees have just created two new departments and added two new professors to the faculty.

The entrance standard has been raised from five to fourteen Carnegie units, thus making the admission requirements as rigid as those of the larger Eastern universities.

The campus has been improved and beautified by grading and by a complete system of modern granolithic walk-ways of the best modern construction.

The scientific laboratories have been installed in modern quarters, with vastly enlarged floor space. They have been likewise vastly strengthened in equipment.

The plan of organizing an adjunct faculty is being gradually evolved by the constant improvement of an enlarging force of instructors and assistants.

The libraries have grown more rapidly than at any time in the history of the College, and a fine new library building has been erected.

The School of Commerce is just now occupying a handsome separate building, recently provided for the purpose. It has enjoyed a rapid growth in numbers and influence.

The athletic field has been enlarged, a grand-stand erected, and the field itself graded, sodded and tiled. The work is being pushed to completion this summer.

In addition to the erection of the new library, the new dormitory and the new engineering building, the old college buildings have been thoroughly renovated and modernized.

The power house has been re-constructed and a complete hot-water system installed throughout the college buildings, in the place of the antiquated system formerly in use.

The interior of the law building has been improved and modern conveniences are being provided.

The residences on the campus have been renovated and beautified. In fact, one of the most striking things to be noted, in connection with recent progress, is the fact that the old college buildings have been put into better condition than at any time since they were constructed.

Finally, it is to be added that the student attendance has grown from two hundred to six hundred, thus showing the public appreciation of the remarkable progress the institution has made.

THE LAW SCHOOL

Perhaps the Law School at Washington and Lee has shown the most remarkable growth of any school in this section of the country. Ten years ago, there were only fifty students. To-day there are one hundred and fifty. During the past year, the school has come into full possession of an endowment of nearly one hundred thousand dollars. It has fairly earned the reputation of being perhaps the foremost two-year law school in the country, and its high standard as a two-year school has attracted national attention and national recognition.

ATHLETICS

The past year has added greatly to the already excellent reputation of our athletic teams. It is recognized that the baseball team was one of the best, if not the very best, in the entire South. The foot-ball team, the basket-ball team and the track team also took rank among the leading teams of the section. The gymnasium and and rowing interests have likewise been kept in the foreground. The great improvements now in progress on the athletic field should still further stimulate interest in all branches of athletic sports.

NEW DEPARTMENTS

The chair of modern languages has been divided into two chairs, as follows:

- (1) The Chair of Romanic Languages.
- (2) The Chair of Germanic Languages.

Professor D. B. Easter, M. A., Ph. D., now professor at Randolph-Macon, has been elected to the former chair. He was educated at Randolph-Macon and at Johns Hopkins.

The chair of Biology will be strengthened by the addition of Dr. J. W. H. Pollard, who was called from the University of Alabama as professor of Physical Education and adjunct professor of Biology. Dr. Pollard was trained at Dartmouth, at Vermont and at Harvard.

THE McDOWELL SCHOLARSHIP

The trustees have established a scholarship with an endowment of $5,000.00, bequeathed to the University by Mrs. Mary B. Ross in honor of her father, former Governor McDowell, of Virginia.

THE MANN BEQUEST

By the will of the late George Sumner Mann, of Massachusetts, the sum of $20,000.00 is left to the University, subject to certain life estates. This bequest is "in honor of the late General Robert Edward Lee and other eminent Virginia generals and statesmen whose loyal adherence to States' rights sustained them in the war between the States."

UNIVERSITY COMMONS

President Denny announces that the trustees have appropriated funds to erect a handsome dining hall. This will supply a long felt want. Three hundred young men will be provided for. Mr. B. C. Flourney ('97) is drawing plans for this building, which will be erected under the direction of the building commission. It will be located near to the Lees Dormitory.
